Suicide in Trigg-Shooting in Todd-Election in Davless-Metals Won-Water-sport-Banquet-Revival.

Liquor License Granted.

License was granted Walter McIntosh Saturday to sell liquor at Manington, in quantities of not less than quart.

Meat House Robbed.

The meat house of Mr. D. E. Foster was robbed of a large quantity of bacon last Friday night. The thieves left no clue.

Flooded by a Water Spout.

The report comes from the neighborhood of Juliette that a regular water spout occurred in that section late Thursday afternoon, doing considerable damage to corn land and other high lands. The downpour for an hour was terrific and young vegetation was beaten into the mud and covered up in many places. Low lands were submerged and will not be in order for work for some time.

Five Divorce Suits Filed.

Notwithstanding the fact that circuit court is a month off, many suits have already been filed for the summer term. Among the number are five divorce suits. Twenty-one divorces were granted at the last term of court, and the chances are that this record will be equaled, if not beat, at the next term. A majority of the suits were brought by colored people.

Prisoners Break Jail.

Guthrie, Ky., May 1.—Eight prisoners escaped from the Springfield, Tenn., jail last Thursday night and are still at large. A large rock in the wall was pushed out, affording an exit for them. There were twelve men confined in the prison, but the other four were asleep and did not wake in time to follow suit with their companions.

White-Copper Convicted.

Jerry Sullivan, who was put on trial at Dixon for complicity in the White capping outrages near Rock Springs, in Webster county recently, was convicted and sentenced to six months in the penitentiary. He is a young man and it seems that this fact went a long way towards securing a light sentence. Tom and William Cordell were put upon trial Friday and the others will be tried as soon as these cases are disposed of.

Pythians Will Have a Banquet.

Grand Chancellor Stanley Adams will visit Evergreen Lodge, Knights of Pythias, Thursday, and big preparations are being made for his reception. There will be an open session of the Lodge at Castle Hall in the afternoon, a banquet at Moayan's Hall at night and after the banquet a session of the Lodge at which there will be work in all the degrees. Representatives of neighboring Lodges will be present and the affair will be a big event in Pythian circles.

Shooting Affray in Todd.

Elkton, Ky., May 1.—A shooting took place two miles south of Elkton on the public highway this afternoon that will doubtless end the life of a well-known citizen. At the time mentioned Dr. Charles P. Lee and brother, Ben Lee, were driving to town in a buggy from their home at Daysville, and passed upon the road Jefferson Morrow in a wagon returning from town. After the Lees had gotten a few paces past, Morrow drew a shotgun and began firing into the buggy from the rear, the balls taking effect in the bodies of his would-be victims. Dr. C. P. Lee is thought to be fatally injured, but his brother has only a flesh wound. The shooting resulted from an old grudge between the families.

Drummers Meet at Paducah.

Paducah, Ky., May 1.—The fourth annual State Convention of the Travelers' Protective Association assembled in Masonic Hall this morning at 10:30, with fair attendance.

The secretary's report showed 301 members in the State in good standing, ninety-one members having been admitted during the year. Two thousand one hundred and seventeen dollars and eighty-four cents were paid out during the year for accidents. Election of the officers this afternoon resulted as follows: Secretary, F. E. Lack, of Paducah; State President, J. M. Porter, of Clinton; First Vice-President, Sam P. Jones, of Owensboro; Second Vice-President, J. J. Hill, of Third Vice-President, H. M. Beauchamp, of Fourth Vice-President, B. E. Baker, of Fifth Vice-President, D. C. Washam.

To-night several candidates were initiated in the mysteries of the order, after which the members assembled at a banquet at the Palmer House. There were 200 attendees, many speeches and a very happy time.

CAPTURED BOTH MEDALS.

South Kentucky College Contestants Win Decimatory Honors.

Hopkinsville scored a double triumph in the intercollegiate declamatory contest at Mayfield Friday night.

There were four colleges represented, as follows: Princeton College, Princeton—John W. Bloomfield, Subject, "Parasitus." Miss Jessie Grubbs, Subject, "Rugles, Christmas Party." Colors, yellow and black. Marvin College, Clinton—E. A. Hilliard, Subject, "Andrew Johnson." Miss Sudee Vaughn, Subject, "Has Mr. Brown Had His Hair Cut?" Colors, blue and white.

South Kentucky College, Hopkinsville—J. W. Hale, Subject, "Mob and Law." Miss Nellie C. Griffin, Subject, "The Uncle." Colors, Oxford blue and white.

West Kentucky College, Mayfield—John C. Houston, Subject, "By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them." Miss Nell Bragg, Subject, "The Swing." Colors, crimson and black.

There were two prizes offered, one to the best speaker of each sex. The prizes were handsome gold medals worth $12.50 each.

The Hopkinsville contestants won both medals. The judges were Hon. E. W. Bagby, Judge James Campbell and Dr. S. B. Caldwell, all of Paducah. Their decisions were in both cases unanimous. Mr. Jas. W. Hale is a sophomore in South Kentucky College. His home is at Grayville, Ga. and he is about 20 years of age. This is his second year at school here.

Miss Griffin is a junior in the same school. She is the daughter of Mr. J. W. Griffin, an employee at the Asylum.

An organization is to be perfected looking to annual contests of this character.

The fact that Hopkinsville captured both honors in this the first contest is not only very creditable to the bright young contestants but speaks volumes for the superiority of South Kentucky College.

WRIGHT WAS WRONG.

A Young Man Commits Suicide While On a Spree.

Urey Wright, aged 21 years, a son of Parker Wright, of Bainbridge, committed suicide at Wallonia, Trigg county, about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

He lived with his father, and was unmarried. He had been on a spree for several days and Sunday morning left home on horseback and went to Wallonia, a distance of about eight miles. Arriving there he went to a blacksmith shop, which was open, and a number of people were in the building, the weather being inclement. He was still drunk and boisterous and made himself so disagreeable and noisy that the owner of the shop ordered him out.

He turned about, walked out in the road in front of the shop, pulled out a pistol and placing it to his right temple fired. The bullet crashed through his brain and he fell dead in his tracks. He gave no reason at all for the act.

Eg. T. J. Guthrie, of Cereus, was sent for and held an inquest on the body. The verdict was in accordance with the facts as given above. The young man's family was notified and he was brought to his late home in this county and the interment took place yesterday.

OLD TRUSTEES RE-ELECTED.

A Small Vote Pooled and But Little Interest Manifested.

The school trustees' election in the city Saturday resulted in the re-election of Dr. T. W. Blakey and Messrs. Joe McCarroll and J. P. Braden. There was no organized opposition to the old trustees, but a considerable complimentary vote was cast for Messrs. Braden, Richards and M. F. Crenshaw, during the latter part of voting. These gentlemen were not voted for until the election had been in progress some hours and most of the opposition the old members was brought about by the officious conduct of certain unpopular ward politicians, who banded them together, their support and drove of many who would have voted for them but for the handicap thus placed upon them. These heels were then taken up by the city attempting to draw party lines, and the "campaign liars" gave free rein to their imaginations. After they had succeeded in making specialties of themselves, some of them took them off the streets and the election closed as quietly as it began. Only about 400 votes were cast, a good deal less than half a vote. The result was as follows: Dr. Blakey being on both the old and the new tickets:

Dr. T. W. Blakey	340
Jas. T. Braden	223
Joe McCarroll	223
Billy Richards	119
M. F. Crenshaw	117

Mr. Howard D. Hage and Mr. John S. Harrison, of Richmond, Va., are visiting the family of Dr. E. Harrison, at Bethel Female College.

THE CENTENNIAL.

THE BIG SHOW FORMALLY OPENED TO THE PUBLIC.

The Most Creditable Exposition Ever Seen In The South—President McKinley Touched The Button.

Nashville, Tenn., May 1.—The opening of the Centennial Exposition of the volunteer state, celebrating the one hundredth anniversary of her admission to the union, was a splendid success. It delighted the hearts of the people of the entire south to see such an auspicious beginning of an enterprise fraught with so much of natural good to this section of the nation. The "great white city" was made glorious by the splendor of the sun of a typical May day. The exercises and the occasion were witnessed by the immense throng, and were entirely appropriate throughout. The city was beautifully decorated in honor of the event. Flags and bunting ornamented the homes and business houses in every part of the city and the decorations were picturesque and beautiful. Gov. Robert L. Taylor was escorted in the parade by a splendid band of music and the members of the Ancient Essene order. The great auditorium was filled with happy faces to witness the exercises which were most doubly attractive by the music of the Bellstedt-Ballenberg band of Cincinnati.

Bishop Gaylor opened the exercises at the auditorium at 11 o'clock with prayer and brief and appropriate addresses were delivered by Gov. Taylor, President Thomas, Gen. Lewis, Chief Justice Snodgrass, Speaker Thomas of the state senate, Speaker Fitzpatrick of the House, and Mayor McCarthy. At noon President McKinley pushed the button which set the machinery in motion.

Mrs. Van Leer Kirkman, president of the woman's board, and the vice-presidents formally received the Morrell electric fountain on behalf of the woman's board at the woman's building and the water was turned on, starting the fountain. Then followed the public reception in the woman's building, which was largely attended, by the beauty and chivalry of the state. The children's exercises were a very attractive feature of the exercise of the day.

The concert near Lake Watauga was highly enjoyed by the assembled thousands. The illumination of the night by turning on the electric lights in the buildings presented a scene of unexampled beauty and grandeur.

The fireworks exhibit drew an immense crowd and no such pyrotechnic display was ever seen in Nashville before. The attendance was estimated above fifty thousand people. It was altogether a most happy and auspicious opening of a great exposition, and every detail of the arrangement was carried out to perfection.

THE METHODIST REVIVAL.

Great Results Follow The Preaching of Dr. Lowery.

The protracted meeting at the Methodist church, now in its third week, has been the most successful revival held at any church in the city for a number of years. Up to Sunday night there had been more than 80 conversions. There were about a dozen professions of faith yesterday night and a large number of others on the anxious seat.

Dr. Jno. B. Lowery, the distinguished revival evangelist, is still preaching morning and evening, having consented to remain a few days longer. The meeting will continue until Wednesday night and perhaps until the end of the week. The attendance at every service continues so large that the church will not hold the crowds. Dr. Lowery is one of the most successful evangelists who has ever visited the city.

Only 25 Wye Lost.

Guthrie, O. T., April 29.—The great Guthrie flood is a thing of the past. The waters have receded and the ground is almost dry.

A trip through the flooded district shows over one hundred houses entirely gone, just as many wrecked or damaged, a dozen business houses wrecked and twice as many stocks of goods damaged.

The loss is fully $100,000, and 600 people are homeless and twice as many lost their clothing, household goods and personal effects.

With the receding of the water and the coming of dawn began the search for the missing. Many of those reported last night as possibly drowned, were found in trees on high places and in houses lodged down places, and it soon became apparent that the number drowned did not exceed twenty or twenty-five.

Victoria, Australia, has adopted a law fixing the lowest wages that may be paid to workmen in factories.

OUR NATIONAL MUSEUM.

Better Known to the Public as the Smithsonian Institution.

Founded with Funds Left to the United States by James Smithson, an Englishman with a Terrible Grudge.

(Special Washington Letter.)

On that delightful reservation in Washington known as the "Mail," or Smithsonian grounds, there stands one of the most famous buildings in the world, namely, the "Smithsonian Institution." Although it is not one of the largest buildings in the world, it is architecturally remarkable. It is built of Seneca brownstone, and the Gothic style of architecture makes it resemble one of the ancient feudal castles with towers and battlements and embrasures like loopholes, reminding one of the ancient battles of the nobles when they fought with arrows instead of guns.

Inside, the prospect is very different from that of an ancient feudal castle, for there are no finds not fierce-headed barons with their ladies crouching behind them in fear of the coming foe, with their army of soldiers, trenchmen, vassals, serfs, servants, hewers and milners. Next to the British museum, the greatest museum on earth, it is a museum not only of exhibit, but of education and for the diffusion of knowledge.

Here comes the peculiar and, one might almost say, romantic feature of this institution: at Genoa, Italy, on the 27th day of June, and in the year 1829, one of the noblest men that ever lived, James Smithson, bequeathed to the United States of America the whole of his fortune, amounting in American money to about $500,000. "To found, according to the terms of the will at Washington, under the name of 'The Smithsonian Institution,' an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men."

A death is an ordinary occurrence, and so is a bequest; but, for an exile from his own home, a gentleman by birth and education and of the highest scientific attainments, laboring under the bar sinister (for he was an illegitimate son of the duke of Northumberland), and with an almost broken heart at the odium cast upon him by his blighted name, to die in a foreign land and leave his whole possessions to the government of another land than that which gave him birth, is, at least, a novelty, if not a romance.

Born in France, where his English mother had gone to escape the odium of her disgrace, he passed the early days of his life in the solitude of Oxford schools, where, in the year of 1785, he was graduated with honors from the Pembroke college, receiving the degree of master of arts from that institution. In early life he was known as Lewis James Mather, but when his mother's name. He did not assume his father's name until he had achieved some scientific attainments. His father had been Sir Hugh Smithson before his marriage to the daughter of Lord Percy had enabled him to assume defaulting in the payment of interest and settling up a counterclaim of indebtedness against the United States. The congress then made the Smithsonian bequest good by placing to the credit of the Smithsonian institution in the treasury of the United States the sum of $250,000, and so it was that the Smithsonian institution, as it now is, was begun. Its officers are the president, the chief justice of the supreme court, the members of the cabinet, three senators, three representatives, two residents of the District of Columbia, three residents of different states, a secretary and an assistant secretary. The first secretary, Joseph Henry, served from 1846 to 1878. The second secretary, Spencer Fullerton Baird, from 1878 to 1887, and the third and present secretary, Samuel Pierpont Langley, from 1887 until this date. The publications of the Smithsonian institution form a library in themselves, and are called "The Annual Reports," "The Smithsonian Miscellaneous Collections," "Bulletins of the National Museum," "The Annual Reports of the Bureau of Ethnology," and "The Bulletin of the Bureau of Ethnology."

These books are given to educational institutions all over the world. In return for these, and by purchase, the institution has received a library of 200,000 volumes, which is deposited in the congressional library for safe keeping. In 1881, a new library was built at a cost of $250,000, to accommodate the growing needs of the National museum, whose collections of wonderful curiosities had become so large that the original building was no longer able to hold it. The bureau of exchange establishes communication with scholars in all parts of the world, by which their publications are exchanged for publications of similar subjects.

The bureau of American ethnology has preserved all the vocabularies of the different types of American Indians in substantial volumes. Their indefatigable author, Powell, who has been in charge of the bureau since 1879, has undertaken many important expeditions to the west, notably among the tribes of Utah, California, Arizona and New Mexico, by which the stock of knowledge added to American ethnology has been very largely increased. The important expeditions of the Stevenson, Cushing, Fawcett and the Muddessels among the Pueblo Indians and the ruins of the southwest; those of Holmes among the prehistoric quarry cities and villages of the eastern part of the continent; those of Thomas, among the mounds of the Mississippi valley and of the northeast section, among the Popago and Seri Indians of the southwest, have also been conducted under the authority of the bureau.

The Zoological park was established by the aid of congress in the year 1890 for the preservation of such American animals as were, then, on the verge of extinction. The park is situated north of Washington, in the beautiful precinct of Rock creek, contains 167 acres, and is the largest of its kind in the world.

Besides the original bequest of Smithson, congress every year makes an additional appropriation for the maintenance of the institution.

On the 25th of July, in the year of 1835, John Forsyth, the secretary of state at Washington, received information from the American minister at London that the original testator of the will, James Hugerford Smithson's nephew (to whom he had left interest in his property and to whose children, if he should marry and have an heir or heirs, legitimate or illegitimate, he left all his property, except an annuity of £100 a year to one John Fitch, an old servant), had died at Pisa, Italy, on the 5th day of June, and in the year of 1835, without heirs, and that as the will read: "In case of leaving a child, or children, I then bequeath the whole of my property, subject to the annuity of £100, to John

PHILOSOPHY OF TRAMPING.

A Professional Wanderer Gives His View of it.

A singular interest is attached to the precise history of tramping. Why men should voluntarily choose to be homeless and wanderers upon the face of the earth, to live in filth and rags, and to exist by begging, always containing a mystery to the people who work and live in houses and have family and business concerns. It is a social and psychological problem to account for the existence of this class—for they are not a necessary part of society, and not, as they themselves generally protest, the victims of circumstance and accident. "Tramping" is their profession. There is failure or success, according as the requisite qualities are brought to bear upon it. Your successful tramp is he who gets the most to eat and the least number of baths, and who escapes in the greatest measure from the hard blows and buffets of this world.

A reporter from the Louisville Courier Journal found a most extraordinary specimen of this class. Without either believing or discrediting his story as he told it, it was easy to see that his personality and career were remarkable among tramps. He disclaimed upon me that he himself termed the "philosophy of tramping."

"Yes," he said, "there is a philosophy of tramping. There are reasons why I choose to live as I do, and I think, upon reflection, that the principal one is an absolutely uncomprehensible disinclination to work. I was well born and well brought up, but I was always remarkable for a lack of energy and force which other men possess in varying degrees. I read and thought a great deal, but I never acted. I have observed the actions of other men, their success or failure, and the reasons thereof, but I have never in my life endeavored to do anything. I detest exertion. It is impossible for me to get used to such a positive and active thing as work. Do not think that I have never tried. Here at this place we must work for our food and lodging, and I was put to saving wood. I made an effort, but was soon discouraged, and refused to try any more. I was told that I must leave if I would not work. It is not that I would not, but I cannot. So, I am going to leave in a few minutes."

"Young man," he said, and a certain light of memory shone momentarily in his eyes, "you imagine, do you not, that I regret the past, compared to the present, and that I am a miserable and unhappy creature? I can assure you that it is not so. It is true, that formerly, long ago, I had money, I enjoyed life, but I have learned to endure this existence, at least without pain. I have no desire to be otherwise than I am. Consequently I am nearer to contentment than many men of better fortunes, who are tormented with hope and fear, and are always concerned with dissatisfaction with their present, and apprehension of their future affairs. Excitement wears men out, as motion does machinery; inertia rusts them, as it does steel and iron; but I have a gentleness of mind and body, so that I neither rust nor wear out. I am without responsibility, or care, or trouble; nothing that may happen, of that anybody can, can disturb my serenity. I do not mind being wet; the weather does not concern me, for in winter I am in the south; clothes given are given me; I get enough to eat and smoke; I believe nothing, I hope nothing, I expect nothing. In short, I am as contented as a human being can be, and I call myself a philosopher. I have more right to that title than men who torment themselves with speculations about infinity, and the soul of man, and a thousand other things which are no consequence in this world. Live what I preach, and that is, Nothing. From my position of peace and contentment, I can look with pity upon men who struggle only to fail; at last, whose desires are never realized, who hope, and are ever disappointed, who expect much and receive little, and who finally lay down their weary, worn bodies, and are glad to die. Happy am I to escape these things, and to live or to die with an equal indifference and contentment."

The reporter had begun to think seriously of becoming a tramp, and of exchanging his life for this glad and careless condition, so charmingly pic-

What a wonder it is that some women are so fond of the things that concern them most. They endure all sorts of pain and misery with a business-like indifference which is possible if they realized the consequences. Comparatively few women understand that when they neglect their health because they are too busy or overworked or their minds are upset by other concerns, that they are balancing on the edge of a fatal precipice.

Any weakness or disease of woman's special organism is no trifling matter. A woman who neglects these troubles is laying the foundation for life-long wretchedness.

A modest woman naturally recoils from the mortifying ordeal of examinations and local treatment which doctors insist upon. But there is no necessity for any such repugnant alternative. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a complete and positive remedy for this particular purpose by one of the most eminent living specialists in woman's diseases.

Dr. Pierce has been for nearly 30 years chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Department of New York City. During this time he has received fully ninety thousand letters from women who have been cured by the "Favorite Prescription." Some of these letters are printed by permission in each chapter of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page book, "The People's Guide to the Female System." It contains advice and suggestions for self-treatment which every woman ought to read. More than half a million copies have been sold at $1.50 each. An absolutely free edition on paper covers will be sent limited time to anyone sending a one-cent stamp to pay the cost of mailing only. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For a handsome cloth-bound copy send 3 stamps.

The Shah has an exceeding small harem for an eastern monarch. There are not above sixty ladies, and he has four sons and twenty-three daughters. The only occasion any of the Shah's wives are to be seen on the streets of Tehran is when they pass in carriages. When the ladies go out driving they are proceeded by a gang of farashas, who cap ahead on their horses, shouting, "Go and hide your selves!" And all men have to assume up side streets or be thrashed.—Mayfield Monitor.

Over 3,500 votes were cast in the Davis county Democratic primary election Saturday. W. T. Owen carried the county by 800 over Eli H. Brown, for Circuit Judge, and will carry the district. With one precinct to hear from the vote for Commonwealth's Attorney is: J. E. Rowe, 1,825; E. E. Kelly, 1,222; Joe Haycraft, 328. Rowe's plurality will be over 600 and he will carry McLean and Ohio counties, and the district.

Penn Taylor wins the nomination for County Judge; J. T. Griffith, for County Clerk; J. M. Smith, for Sheriff; La Vega Clements, for County Attorney; John Ashby, for Jailor, no opposition; R. L. Lancaster, for School Superintendent, no opposition; Jesse Hart, for Assessor, Geo. M. Hayden, for Coroner, and J. E. Monarch, for Surveyor. R. E. Watkins carries the county district for Representative. The closest race was for Circuit Clerk, Sam Bedford defeating John A. Lydane, the present Clerk, by 38 majority.

Much Sickness at Gracy.

Gracy, May 3.—Little Elmer Ramer was brought back from Henderson yesterday, where he has been in a hospital since March 6, on account of swallowing a piece of stick. He is not yet over the effects.

Mrs. Jas. R. Gollady is still quite sick, but there are now more hopes of her recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert McGehee will leave to day for Guthrie to make their home.

The May Ladies' Home Journal uniquely reflects the sentiment and spirit of spring. "In An Old Fashioned Garden" fairly emits the season's fragrant flavor, as do other contributions in prose and verse. Hon. John Russell Young recalls the notable incidents—fetes, receptions and pageants, etc.—of General Grant's memorable tour of the world, and President Harrison gives highly interesting glimpses of the President's home and home life in an article on "The Domestic Side of the White House"—the concluding one of his admirable series. Edward W. Bok editorially presents the really practical side of the crusade against the slaughter of birds for their plumage, and forcibly protests against the pernicious habit of spitting in public places. A reminiscent article by Mrs. Raymond Maude, "My Mother as I Recall Her," gives some delightful glimpses of the personal side of Juney Lind, especially of her home life.

Among its notable art features are the dainty cover by Howard Pyle and Alice Barber Stephens' drawing of "The Woman in the Home," the title of her "American Woman" series. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar per year; ten cents per copy.

A beautiful cover in nine colors, from a design by Gorguet, the distinguished French artist, gives promise of the bright and spring-like contents of the May number of Scribner's Magazine. It launches a new kind of college article—not a history of the institution, but a reminiscent and discursive account of "Undergraduate Life," old and new, which is always The College in the minds of its graduates. Edward S. Martin, one of the founders of the Lampton and a graduate of '77, opens the series with Harvard. He traces the evolution of Harvard social life from the old days of "class feeling" to the present day when the elective system and 500 men in a class have made the old unity of life and interest impossible. His account of the career of a typical Boston boy on his way through the social mazes of Harvard is not only amusing, but of great value as a picture of student life. The abundant illustrations are made from actual scenes by an artist who was taken into the college life and saw it at first hand.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; any sediment or settling indicates a diseased condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and extraordinary effects of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists price fifty cents and one dollar. For a sample bottle sent free, both sent free by mail, mention the HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. THE LAST SURRENDER.

A Scene Dramatic in Incident and Picturesque in Setting.

It Occurred May 4, 1865, When Gen. Richard Taylor Delivered His Sword to Gen. Canby, of the Federal Army.

(Special Mobile (A) Letter.)

The last surrender of the civil war, which occurred May 4, 1865, when Gen. Taylor, of the Confederate army, delivered up his sword to Gen. Canby, of the army of the north, was a scene sufficiently dramatic in incident and picturesque in setting to be famed in song and story. Being the last act in one of the most notable sagas in history, the spot where it occurred is not devoid of that interest which might make it an object of pilgrimage.

The possession of the Mississippi river by the federal army, the blockading of all Atlantic and Gulf ports and Sherman's march to the sea cut off communication between that portion of the Confederate army located in Alabama and Mississippi and the headquarters of the Confederate government. It was therefore several weeks after the surrender of Lee and the fall of Richmond before reliable information was received in regard to these facts by Gen. Richard Taylor, "Dick Taylor," as he was called, who was in command of the Confederate forces which occupied the lower half of Alabama and guarded Mobile on the north. On the south Mobile was protected from sea invasion by a chain of forts and harbor obstructions, and thus defended was the last stronghold of the confederacy to capitulate. When this capitulation had been accomplished, and Gen. Edward R. S. Canby, with his well-equipped army, was in possession of the city, it became evident to Gen. Taylor that he must surrender.

Preliminary negotiations were arranged between the two leaders, and Gen. Taylor issued orders for a rendezvous of his troops at Meridian, Miss. The negotiations resulted in an appointment for a final and formal surrender of Gen. Taylor to Gen. Canby, which was decided upon for the meeting of the of rare charm. The wine cellar of Dr. Borden had escaped the fortunes of war, and its contents were brought forth to grace the occasion. Gen. Taylor, in his book, "Destruction and Reconstruction," says in the chapter devoted to his surrender: "The popping of champagne corks all day long was the most agreeable sound I had heard for four years."

In considering this as the last surrender, it might be thought correct to speak of it as the last actual surrender, as three weeks later Gen. E. Kirby Smith, who commanded the Trans-Mississippi department, formally surrendered by proxy. This surrender, which had only the significance of a post factum formality to clear the records, was made at New Orleans on the 25th of May, 1865, by Gen. Buckner, representing Gen. Smith. The army which he had commanded had some time before disbanded, and when the so-called surrender was made there was not even the shadow of a substance to deliver. On the other hand, Gen. Taylor's command, owing to its situation at the time of his surrender, almost a month after the collapse of the confederacy, was a well-organized body of about 4,000 men. These men, after being returned to Meridian, Mississippi, where they were encamped, and struck his flag according to the terms of his surrender, he regularly paroled.

Some years ago, the fine old colonial mansion which was the home of Dr. Borden burned. It is said that the fire was not accidental, but that the house was fired by its owner who, from brooding over the changes in his financial condition wrought by the war, became a victim of melancholia. It seems that the scenes which reminded him of former days, of happy occasions, became particularly hateful to him, and he determined to turn his back upon them forever. The feast which celebrated the last surrender of the civil war was the last entertainment ever given by Dr. Borden who, in the old times, kept open house and was famed, even in this land of the hospitable, for his hospitality. Disposing of his property, he went to California and never returned. The tract of about 200 acres, which the commanding general which was the scene of the last surrender was a part, was purchased by Eugene D. Mann, the

A FURIOUS SWORD FIGHT.

Marvelous Skill Displayed at Thome's game-Pini Duel in Paris.

On the very same day that the Corbett-Fitzsimmons match was fought at Carson City, English fashion, the Parisians enjoyed a famous fight, French fashion, in the duel between the great Luchini, fencing master, Chevalier Pini and M. Thomexux, a renowned Parisian swordsman. A brief mention of the affair was called to the newspapers here, in which it was treated rather lightly; but, in reality it was a desperate fight, in which numerous phases of fencing were displayed. It was a nine-bout battle and lasted more than 40 minutes. Its semi-international character gave it considerable additional interest. It was witnessed by a host of spectators, all gathered near the stand of the Saint-Quen race course. In the crowd were many photographers taking snap-shots, and one of them had a kineoscope, which took in the combat from start to finish, just as in the case of the Luchini-Fitzsimmons fight.

The cause of the duel was trivial, and it is now admitted that it was a case of mistaken identity.

At about two p. m. the principals, with their seconds and surgeons, arrived. Pini was first upon the ground. He appeared to be delighted and warmly shook the hands of many friends, while the photographers opened the fire upon him, taking him in front, in the rear, and on the flank. Immediately afterwards Thomexux entered the arena.

The grave responsibility of directing the combat, or, in other words, acting as referee, fell upon M. Georges Breitmann. When the words were spoken to the combatants: "Go gentlemen!" was pronounced, the fight began. M. Thomexux, in a threatening style, held his weapon well in line, and, advancing, made several feints for an opening. M. Pini remained on the defensive, merely watching for a chance for a deadly riposte, but fortune did not favor him. Nevertheless, in this bout he disarmed his adversary. He saluted; his salute was returned, and the battle was renewed with vigor. Evidently the men were evenly matched. The second bout was without incident, beyond giving an exhibition of splendid swordsmanship.

In the third bout Thomexux, fancying he had wounded Pini in the arm, lowered his weapon, and, in the excitement of the moment, he was not touched.

The fourth bout was furious. With lightning rapidity Pini drew his weapon at Thomexux's chest, and a vigorous parry was made. The point landed on a stone. The sword was bent like a reed and rendered worthless. Another sword was handed to the Italian professor, and the fifth bout was without incident. The combatants were again evenly matched.

In the sixth bout the fight was stopped by the seconds, who believed that M. Pini was wounded in the arm. He was unhurt.

The duellists now faced each other for the seventh bout. They fought each other, lunging with wonderful force and parrying with equal skill, until the point of Pini's weapon reached the guard of Thomexux's, and for the second time the former's weapon was bent.

At the end of the time it was repaired, and the eighth bout was begun with furious attacks on the part of Thomexux. Pini gave ground, watching for a riposte. Apparently his chance presented itself, and he sent in a terrible thrust at Thomexux's breast. Some of the spectators shuddered, and many of them thought that the man had been run through, or at least badly wounded; but a parry that is described as "something marvelous" by the experts who saw it, saved him, and when the seconds and surgeons rushed in they found him unhurt and smiling.

In the ninth bout M. Thomexux was wounded in the right cheek. He declared that it was merely a scratch, and that he did not care, but the surgeons insisted that the internal hemorrhage interfered with his breathing to such a degree that he was in a condition of inferiority. M. Breitmann then stopped the combat.

Chevalier Pini advanced toward M. Thomexux and offered him his hand. The latter grasped it, muttered some complimentary remarks, and the two men left the dueling ground fast friends.—N. Y. Sun.

IS STEEL OUT OF DATE?

Paper Rails Being Successfully Used on Continental Lines.

The successful introduction of railroad rails, made entirely of paper material in Germany and Russia, encourages American manufacturers to experiment. The foreign mode of making the rail consists in the employment of molds and powerful pressing machines, the former for shaping the rail and the latter for consolidating purposes. Paper rail wheels have been in use for many years, and have given satisfaction. It is not assuming too much to anticipate satisfactory results with paper rails. The iron or steel rails now in use are by no means free from defects. The metal is always more or less affected by the condition of the atmosphere, and accidents are frequently traced to the warping, contraction or expansion of rails.

Again, there are flaws and similar imperfections in rails of the metallic order, and these often give trouble. The heavy locomotives and other rolling stock of these days require extraordinarily large and heavy rails, consequently, rails cannot be made very long, as the weight would be too much. The paper rails are less than one-half lighter for the same length and size, so that, so far as the weight question is concerned, the length of the latter can be twice that of the iron or steel rail. This obviates the use of just so many joints, dispenses with so many bolts and connections, and relieves the wheels of the car from just so many shocks.

The process of manufacturing the rails is not difficult when once the necessary compressive apparatus is available, as the solidifying operation is probably the main part of the whole work. The composition of the rails includes several varieties of the paper pulp stock. Wood pulp has not been tried with any marked success as yet, but ordinary pulp from gums, rope stock, etc., answers the purpose. The processes of grinding, cooking, digesting and working the rags into a pulpy condition are accomplished in regular order, care being taken to have stock uniform in preparation, and the fibers as well preserved as possible. When in a pulpy condition the ingredients for stiffening the rail and rendering it tough and efficient, so as to stand excessive wear and friction from the wheels, and for imparting elasticity, smoothness and other needed requirements, are applied. So varied have these been that no definite proportions of any of the substances are procurable.

Quantities of borax, paraffine wax, tanner's grease, waterproof fish glue, resin and fine cement are employed in necessary proportions, and are added to the pulp while it is yet warm. Mixing follows, and the ingredients are thoroughly combined with the fiber. A quantity of shellac and wood alcohol is next put into the mixture, and the mass is subjected to another stirring and then permitted to settle.

The paper rails are strong, durable, can be bent for curves like other rails, and possess the advantages of lightness and increased length, besides being easier for the wheels and cars, and having other points of superiority. Their cost is said to be 30 per cent. less than that of steel. They are adaptable for both paper and iron car wheels.—Paper Trade Journal.

The Newspaper Extra.

Doubtless few know that the New York Journal of Commerce has long published what is popularly known as a newspaper extra. When this occurred times were troublesome in Europe, and the great revolution of 1830 was approaching. Naturally America was anxious for early news, and all the newspapers of New York equipped small boats that cruised about the harbor, waylaying the large packet vessels arriving from abroad to get the tidings. The Journal of Commerce conceived the plan of sending out a small schooner to intercept the packets two or three days ahead of their arrival. The originators of the plan were laughed at, and told that it would in the end ruin them. Results proved otherwise, however, and when the semaphoric telegraph announced the schooner in the offing, and later, coming up the bay, the crowd would gather around the office of the paper. They had to wait until the extra evening edition was ready, and then one of the partners would come ashore with the news read to hundreds of citizens, while thousands of copies were sold. This schooner was the first American news boat of any size.—Boston Budget.

The History of Tacitus.

The entire history of Tacitus, as we have the work, was regained from a single copy found in the fifteenth century in a monastery of Westphalia. This we should owe the work of this author to one copy in a remarkable circumstance, for Emperor Tacitus, who claimed to be a descendant of the historian, had copies of the history placed in every library of the empire, and each year had ten copies transcribed for presentation to scholars. All, it seems, perished save the Westphalian copy.

Sometimes the most careful women are the most careless. Many a woman builds her life to keep out sickness—when she is neglecting the very worst sickness that can come to a woman. She allows a slight disorder to become chronic, to slowly sap her vitality. The little pains and the other slight indications of trouble seem to her unimportant. She goes on with increasing suffering, until the life itself becomes a drag. Nervousness, "sinking spells," digestive disturbances, and fifty other complications may arise from the derangement of the organs distinctly feminine. Over thirty years ago, the need for a reliable remedy for so-called "female complaints" was recognized by Dr. R. V. Pierce, then, as now, chief consulting physician to the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, at Buffalo, N. Y. He prepared Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, the most wonderfully effective remedy that has ever been used for such maladies. A year ago this spring my brother was laid up in bed with inflammatory rheumatism and I kept him in the house all the time and have always found it beneficial for such cases. MOUNTAINEERS' BLONDESS.

A Strange Fact Educated by Scientific Scholars.

One example, tending to prove that in mountainous areas of isolation of some cause is at work which tends to disturb racial equilibrium in the color of the hair and eyes, is drawn from Dr. Levi's monumental treatise on the anthropology of Italy. In entire independence of my own inferences, writes Prof. William Z. Ripley, in the Popular Science Monthly, he arrived at an identical conclusion that blondness somehow is favored by a mountainous environment. From a study of 300,000 recruits he found that 14 out of the 16 compartments into which Italy is divided conformed to this law. There was generally from four to five per cent. more blondness above the 400-meter line of elevation than below it. The true significance of these figures is greater than at first appears, for we have again to consider the fact that in the light of racial probability. In northern Italy the mountains ought to be lighter than the plains, because the Alps are here as elsewhere a stronghold of a racial type relatively blond as compared with the Mediterranean brunettes. Environment and race here join hands to produce greater blondness in the mountains. It is in the south of Italy that the two work in opposition, and here we turn for test of our law. In the south the mountains should contain the Mediterranean brunet type in relatively undisturbed purity, for the northern blonds are more frequent in the attractive districts open to immigration. Even here in many cases this racial probability is reversed, or equalized somewhat, because which work in opposition to race, so that we find comfort at every turn.

The law which we have sought to prove is not radically new. Many years ago Waites asserted that mountaineers tended to be lighter in color of skin than the people of the plains, educating some interesting evidence to that effect from the study of primitive peoples.

DIARY OF A BUSY KITTEN.

This Young Author Shows Originality in the Realistic Vein.

A little girl is responsible for the following story:

7 a. m.—Got up and took a little exercise before breakfast. Mistress' work-basket was on the mantelpiece. Didn't think it was in proper order, so tried to set it to rights, but didn't succeed. The whole thing tumbled to the floor and the thread got all tangled around the chair legs. Gave it up as a bad job.

9 a. m.—Got hungry. Tired waiting for the folks to come down, so helped myself to cream, which was not so thick as usual.

10 a. m.—Found my claws needed sharpening. Tried to do it on lace curtains, but the flimsy stuff came to pieces the moment I touched it.

11 a. m.—Time for my nap. Found a comfortable place on top of a large clock. Moved the big vase that stood on top of it out of my way. It fell to the floor and made a terrible racket. Had a fine nap.

2 p. m.—Slept till my waist pained. They would not give me a bite, so had to find a mouse.

3 p. m.—Succeeded; a fine fat fellow made me feel good.

4 p. m.—Saw my mother asleep in the sun. Climbed up in a tree and jumped down on her just for fun. She did not seem to care. Had to run and stay hidden for a long time.

6 p. m.—Saw a bird in the cherry tree that looked as if he had been bent on purpose for my supper. Got him.

8 p. m.—Happy at last on this delightful roof. Shall sit here and sing all night long. M-a-a-ow!—San Francisco Call.

A Ring of Diamond.

A ring recently exhibited at Antwerp was the admiration of diamond cutters and merchants, because it was the first successful attempt to cut a ring out of a single stone. There are a great many difficulties in this method of cutting diamonds, as the stones have a certain cleavage and particular veins, all of which have to be carefully studied in order to prevent splitting just as success seems within reach. After several unsuccessful attempts and three years' labor, the feat has been accomplished by the patience and skill of M. Antoine, one of the best-known lapidaries of Antwerp. The ring is about six-eighths of an inch in diameter. In the Marlborough cabinet there is a ring cut out of one entire and perfect sapphire.

A bartender in Rochester blundered served sulphuric acid to two of his customers, and in half an hour they were writhing in pain in hospital. In extenuation of his mistake the bartender said: "It's lucky I didn't give them some of our worst whisky, for that might have killed them."
